POSSE IS STILL ON TRAIL OF GARDNER

(By Associated Press)

KELSO, Wash., June 13.—Deputy sheriffs and possemen who last night surrounded a swamp north of here, into which a man said to resemble Roy Gardner, the escaped convict, was seen sinking, still maintained their vigil this morning and hoped to close in on the fugitive if he still is within the cordon.

Norris H. Pyron, Gardner's confederate in the daring escape from the guards on a train early Saturday morning, was put in jail here last night following his capture on the outskirts of Kelso. He surrendered without resistance when he was found hiding in the grass.

Pyron's captors said he was terror-stricken and he appeared to be relieved when put in a cell in the county jail. Pyron talked freely. He said he did not intend to escape but was forced to accompany Gardner under threat of death.

Pyron was taken to the office of Prosecuting Attorney Stewart last night and gave a statement. He said he left Gardner a short distance south of Castle Rock, Gardner telling him to "beat it." Pyron's account of the manner in which the escape was executed coincided with the first account sent from Castle Rock Saturday.

SUMMER WORK IS STARTED IN THE HAMILTON MINES

El Z. Peters, manager of the Eschschmidt Hamilton Mining company, accompanied by Mrs. Peters, was an early visitor on Tuesday, and stated that at last the roads to the camp were open and that summer work is now in full swing. The company has practically finished the road work which a winter took last season, and is therefore now installing its compressor plant at the Locustville tunnel, which will also include power for hoisting from the winze which is now being sunk from the floor of the old tunnel. The winze is now down 50 feet and is all in ore of a good milling grade, with streaks and bunches of ore coming in which run from 200 to 500 ounces. The high grade increased from 200 ounces near the tunnel level to 500 ounces at a depth of 35 feet where the high grade was cut off by a fault but at the present depth the rich ore is again coming in.

Several camp buildings will be erected during the next few weeks, after which the company will be in condition to take care of a considerable force of men, which will then be added to the payroll. During the fall months supplies will be laid in for the winter, and as the work will be underground the snow and cold weather will not interfere with the further development of the property. Notwithstanding the high freight rates and the excessive smelting charges, shipments have been commenced from the Wilson-Johnson property, which will continue all summer, and it is also probable that a number of other properties will commence shipping high grade ore in the near future.—Ely Record
